Data Storage

We store the personal data that we collect for up to 5 (five) years, and only aggregate data after that time. Aggregation data means that we can no longer look at data for individual users. We store the data with our third-party service provider, Amazon Web Services. When a third-party service provider is a controller, they may keep data as well, either for a shorter or longer period.

Data Protection

We protect the collected data by using strong encryption algorithms and standards such as AES and SSL/HTTPS, and ensuring the least privilege access principle across all data repositories and files:

- Writing IAM user policies that specify the users that can access specific buckets and objects.
- Writing bucket policies that define access to specific buckets and objects.
- Using Amazon S3 Block Public Access as a centralized way to limit public access.
- Setting access control lists (ACLs) on buckets and objects.

Your Rights Regarding The Data

You have the right to request access to your personal data that we process. You also have the right to rectify incorrect personal data or erase it in certain circumstances; restrict or object to the processing of your personal data; and receive your data so that you can use it elsewhere (data portability).

More Information:

Hopefully that has clarified things for you. As was previously mentioned, if there is something that you aren't sure whether you need or not, it's usually safer to leave cookies enabled in case it does interact with one of the features you use on our site.

This policy is effective as of March 18th, 2022.
